New York, May 2.—The Street Dublin cold-New York, May 3-The Star's Dublin cablegram of May 2nd says: The city is in a ferment of excitement to-day. A new act in the terrible tragedy in Phoenix Park a year ago was presented in the Green-street Courthouse this morning. It cannot be said to have been an unrehearsed effect, for you will remember that at the commencement of the trials I forshadowed the probabilities which have now become acplished facts, venturing the opinion that after the conviction of the principals in the murder, pleas of guilty would be accepted from the others, and this has occurred. It has been expected that there would be conditions of mercy annexed to the pleas, and though this has been strenuously denied in Court by representatives of the Crown, no one believes that there is not a mental reservation in the denial. The pleas of guilty by accomplices constitute the most positive evidence for the prosecution, far beyond the testimony of the informers in effect, and force is lent to the opinion of an understanding, direct or indirect, between the Crown and the accused, by the circumstantial statements superadded to the plea and the solemn assertions of the men convicted on their own confessions that the actual perpetrators of the crime were Brady

> You will remember that Kelly has already been tried twice, with the result of the jury disagreeing each time, while Brady is under sentence. Kally is to be tried again and the effect of Delaney's declaration to-day will be disas-trous to the prisoner. It is supposed, in well-informed circles, the Delany will be produced as a witness for the Crown. His name had already been mentioned as a probable informer. He was convicted and sentenced to penal servitude for an attack on Judge Dawson and was games and dances, keeping them up until subsequently included in the indistreent for the ncluded in the indictment for the Phoenix Park affair.

> The general feeling is that the Crown has scored its greatest victory in the proceedings today, but there is the accompanying suspicion that the scene of the forenoon was a welldevised coup de theatre, reseaved for final effect. Quite general and contrary to his New York, April 11th .- General S. C. Armtrong read a paper last evening before the Long Island Historical Society in Brooklyn upon "The Hawaiian Islands," before a very large audience. He said: "The darkest shadow on the Islands at the present time was the irruption of the Chinese. Their vast immigration had caused an inequality in the sexes, the men greatly outnumbering the women-a result always fatal to morality. The Reciprocity Treaty with our country has stimulat d business and made money plenty. If abrogated, it would ruin many of the planters on the Islands, and would cause the Government of the Islands to form an alliance with some European nation. We may not know our need of these Islands until it is too late to obtain them." New York, April 12th .- Speaking of the new Sandwich Island coins, the Times of Philadelphia says: Colonel Snowden showed a reporter some drawings for dies to-day. On one side of the coin will be the King's face, and on the other a portion of the great seal of this country. The denomination of the coins will be indicated respectively. There will likewise be dimes, but the Hawaiian signification of that piece of silver has not yet been translated. In size and weight the money will be equal to United States de-nominations. The dies will probably be sent to San Francisco, where the first batch of money, to the value of one million dollars, will, it is said, be made, the mint at that place being the nearest to the Sandwich Islands. Washington, April 30th, -Colonel Iaukea of find that Chinamen who come to our country kahuna, like one possessed of a demon, ut with their wives, we are very willing to receive sembled people had recovered from the them."

Cairo, May 3d .- A telegram has been received with awe and horror for many of them from Colonel Hicks reporting that on the 29th | claimed to have witnessed the supernatural nltimo he had an engagement with 5000 rebels.
The battle, which lasted half an hour, resulted in the defeat of the rebels with 500 killed, including the Lietenant-General of El Waheli (the False Prophet) and many wounded. The Egyptian losses were slighter Hicks praises the spectres. gallantry of the Egyptian troops.

St. Petersburg, Aprl 21.—The Emperor and Empress will reach Mcscow on May 21st. The coronation will take place on the 27th. The festivities, including eight grand balls, will be prolonged until June 8th. The state entry into St. Petersburg will be made on June 10th.

The sugar trade is as active as it always is at this season of the year. It is even better than usual-there being a much larger distribution than ever before. There has been no change in the market and will not probably be for some time. The Abermann, the Suez, and the Chas. Hansen brought 3,578,715 pounds of Hawaiian

It was perhaps in the days when the imaginary deity which is still presumed to haunt this place exerted wide and terrible influence over the minds of the Kauaians that a fearful tragedy occurred, according to tradition, at this frightful precipice. Long before the time of Kamehameha the Conqueror, so runs the legend, a mighty chief who had subdued all the inhabitants of Kaual dwelt with his family in his hale pile up in the mountains not very far above the falls of Hanawai. Near by lived an old kahuna, the daughter of a former ruler of the island who had been vanquished in battle and slain by the then reigning chief. This old kahuna cherished a secret, bitter resentment against the hand that killed her father and usurped his authority and confiscated his taro lands in the valley. For a long time she had meditated a plan of avenging her father's death and destroying the great chief, who now occupied his place, together with all his family, but this design she had carefully concealed and resorted to every possible mode of deception to make the reigning chief believe that she had entirely forgotten her father's cruel fate. In this she succeeded and eventually became a favorite of the great chief, so as to become intimate with all his habits. At length there was a great luau given in honor o some important event on the smooth plateau or prominitory partially bordered by the frightful precipice. From all parts of the island, multitudes of men and women had gathered. An abundance of food was provided, and after all had eaten heartily, the young and lithe began the ancient Then the plays were gradually suspended, large quantities of awa were brought in calabashes and all joined in repeated libations and freely imbibed the stupefying liquid. The stupefaction soon became general custom, the great chief drank to excess, and together with several of his sons was soon quite insensible. When most all of the assembled multitude were in an unconscious condition the old kahuna, who had still novrished her resentment with the hope of revenge, came forward from a neighboring jungle where she had concealed herself to watch an opportunity for vengeance. Her black withered form, her long bushy hair almost white with age, the ferocious and demoniacal expression of her features and her attitude as she crept stealthily towards her intended victims, gave her all the real terrifying appearance that, imagination could attribute to the Prince of Devi s. She approached the spot where the stupefied chief lay, she raised her blood-shot eyes toward the sky, and, with frightful convulsive grimaces uttered an invocation to the spirit of her dead father, calling him from the repose of the tomb to come with the spuit powers which she controlled and hurl his murderer and family over the in the Hawaiian and English languages.
